Additional Resources For Using Photography and Propaganda Imagery To Teach World War I

A wonderful interactive visual history of the Great War created by the American Battle Monuments Commission.

Photographs and excerpts from letters of an American doughboy from Meuse-Argonne Offensive.

“Never Before Published World War I Photographs” by an unknown photographer reveal life in the trenches.

Great coverage of World War I with images, audio, interactive guides, and many other great tools to teach about the Great War from a global perspective.
http://www.bbc.com/ww1

An article on World War I and its link to several of the words that we still in use in the English language; it also contains a condensed visual history of the Great War.

“The Great War: Photography on the Western Front” by Caitlin Patrick provides a nice overview of the role photograph played on the Western front.
http://www.ucd.ie/photoconflict/histories/wwiphotography/

World War I image archive neatly classifies images and provides basic information about each image.
http://www.gwpda.org/photos/  It is part of the larger World War I Primary Document Archive.
http://www.gwpda.org

A wonderful collection of 20th century propaganda posters organized by topic.
http://guity-novin.blogspot.com/2010/05/chapter-29-propaganda-posters.html

LEARN NC has a nice database of World War I propaganda posters with brief descriptions of each poster.
http://www.learnnc.org/lp/editions/ww1posters/